BIO

(109 words)

Edward N Brown is a storyteller with a background in science, philosophy, ancient history, and theology. His technique is to blend the interesting nuggets of historical record, legend, biography, romance, scientific fact, spirituality, and personal drama – all mixed together into an informative, but easy-reading, faith-based tale of wonder and awe. An educational background of three advanced degrees (PhD + two MS) has contributed to his insights on Christianity, Religion, Antiquity, Morality, and Human Nature. Classified as 'Narrative Non-Fiction' (ancient religious history), his works represent an elegant fusion of style – facts and events in riveting story form – drama and intrigue that will inform, entertain, and inspire readers of all ages.

5 Star Major Media Reviews

- "This Book is A Gem. A must read for all those who desire to have an intelligent, creative, and somewhat magical time with their reading. I did!"
Maricarmen Castro, Journey to Grow, Presbyterian Pastor
re:\The Passion of Eve: Remembering the Beginning
- "The author has a way with words. There is magic in the way he tells the story, how he describes each scene, and breathes life into it... a great story that is incredibly easy to read; enjoyable and educational all at the same time."
Rabia Tanveer, Readers' Favorite
re:\The Passion of Eve: Remembering the End
- "... the book I had always hoped to find about the early centuries of Christianity... a book to be discovered."
Astrid Iustulin, Readers' Favorite
re:\Saint, Martyr, Virgin, Slave: Faith and Freedom Forever

Media Interviews

- "I try to put myself in the head and mind of the main character, expressing all of his or her conflicting thoughts, feelings, and emotions, and reveal a decision-making process that explains why they did what they did."
» author to Don McCauley, The Authors Show Radio
- "This book is a narrative that combines memoirs and events – an examined reconstruction as to what may have actually happened in the first century... a story that puts the reader right there and then – a story that inspires; and gives strength and hope to overcome life's adversities, whether 2000 years ago or today. Above all, it's a story that touches the human heart."
» author on the 'Authors-First Show', Artist First Radio Network
- "I want to connect with the average Joe. I'm not much for long-haired stuff that never gets out of the office or classroom. I need to reach out to the masses. Science, history, philosophy, and religion are ever presenting new perspectives on things we think of as important to us. Worthy stories that interpret and expand these new perspectives, can be written such that they are understandable and available to everyone. They are indispensable for cleaning the mind, broadening our understanding, and instilling new wonder. And wonder is something at the core of what makes us human."
